

Press Release

Prof Dr Håkan Jönsson receives Swedish Sustainable Sanitation Award!

- I am especially proud to receive this award during the UN International Year of Sanitation 2008, says Håkan Jönsson, presently employed at Stockholm Environment Institute and Swedish University of Agricultural Sciences.

- Håkan has been instrumental in the development of sustainable sanitation systems of the future in Sweden and abroad, says Dr Ulrika Geber, director of Centre for Sustainable Agriculture at the Swedish University of Agricultural Sciences, member of the jury

The prize, a diploma and a travel grant, is presented during the National Conference on Wastewater and Recycling on march 4-5 in Linköping, Sweden

What is the Swedish Sustainable Sanitation Award?

The award is granted since 2004 to a person or group of persons in the Nordic countries who have forwarded the development of environmentally sound and recycling wastewater systems. The prize is awarded by the founders of the National Conference on Wastewater and Recycling, see below. Members of the jury include representatives from research, municipalities; agriculture and wastewater treatment.

Contact information Håkan Jönsson:

E-mail: Hakan.Jonsson@sei.se , Telefon: +46 8 674 7470

About the National Conference on Wastewater and Recycling

The conference is an annual event to gather municipalities, authorities, researchers, experts and policy makers with a focus on wastewater and reuse of wastewater fractions. The theme for 2008 is the Marine Environment and Strategic Sanitation Planning. An extra emphasis is given to the UN International Year of Sanitation with the contribution by Ms Barbara Evans.

For more information on the conference please contact Mats Johansson +46 70 - 650 00 51 or Marika Palmer-Rivera +46 730 - 96 93 31

The organizers are:

avloppsguiden.se

